When full payment is made on orders placed before June 25th we allow an additional 5% making 10% in all.

Darwin Tulips

For every garden purpose Darwin Tulips are unequalled. The grace and beauty of the bright colored flowers, carried on tall strong stems, is unsurpassed by any other spring flowers. Many varieties can be forced in the home, some of them quite early. Either grown in pans, or as cut flowers, they give great satisfaction. Their colors are bright; the flowers are cup-shaped and have a flat base. Inside the flowers the base usually is blue or white, or a combination of these colors. With the Darwins we list also the Ideal Darwins which is a new group containing many fine shades and brilliant colors. In our section the Darwins bloom from May 18th to 26th.

Breeder Tulips

The giant Breeder Tulips are somewhat similar to the Darwins in that they have long stems, but there is a great difference in the coloring. The Breeders are mostly "art colored," bronzy, brown, violet, and purple colors and in the newer varieties orange plays a part. The outer petals have a beautiful bloom similar to the shade of ripe plums or grapes. In western New York they are at the height of their glory usually from the 22nd to 28th of May. Most of the flowers are globular shaped and have a round base. The richness of tone as well as sheer stately dignity will eventually open all garden gates for the Breeders and we strongly recommend the planting of these stately giants.
